

Appalachia

Volume 69
Number 2 Summer/Fall 2018: Role Reversal in the Mountains

Article 21

2018

Brief History on the Black River

Russ Capaldi

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.dartmouth.edu/appalachia>

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Capaldi, Russ (2018) "Brief History on the Black River," Appalachia: Vol. 69: No. 2, Article 21.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.dartmouth.edu/appalachia/vol69/iss2/21>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by Dartmouth Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Appalachia by an authorized editor of Dartmouth Digital Commons. For more information, please contact dartmouthdigitalcommons@groups.dartmouth.edu.

Brief History on the Black River

I read Brad Angier in a pensive mood. I wear less wool. My kids urge me to try the technical side, so I buy a new sleeping bag. Warm and wrapped, drifting off, I hear the icy spill and splash at the beaver dam; further down, under cold stars, in slower water an elk crosses where once a huge brook trout, ghostly, rose to my #12 Ginger Quill tied on a string, tied to a stick of tag alder.

Russ Capaldi

RUSS CAPALDI has published poems in Rosebud and Dunes Review and essays in Traverse—Northern Michigan's Magazine. He makes his living as a carpenter and cabinetmaker in northern Michigan, where he lives with his wife. They enjoy hiking, camping, skiing, and snowshoeing just a few miles from the North Country Trail.