Path

Each cairn appears out of the fog just as you need it to find your way along the ridge, a pile of rocks topped with one white quartz—a light, as much as rock can be,
light in the absence of light, your way lit by stone.

Midge Goldberg

MIDGE GOLDBERG's poems have appeared in journals such as Northern Woodlands and have been read by Garrison Keillor on A Writer's Almanac. Her book Flume Ride (David Robert Books) was published in 2006. She lives in Chester, New Hampshire, and recently traversed the Presidential Range in the White Mountains for the first time.

"I started reading Appalachia for the accident reports, but I kept reading for the great features."—Mohamed Ellozy, subscriber
